

UNLOCK

Creativity through game-based learning at higher education

Jéssica Chaves Reuter

Jéssica Chaves Reuter has a degree in management from the University of Santa Maria (Brazil) and presently she is a master's student in finance in the University of Aveiro. She is co-author in papers in the field of education and has participated in international conferences. She is currently a researcher at UNLOCK - project - Creativity in HEIs through a game design approach. Her research interests include financial markets, international finance, public policy, and gamification in education.

